

Tested and found to be effective

Rayonex Biomedical has conducted several studies on bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt over the last few years. The most meaningful of which is the new clinical prospective, double-blind, randomised study on pain reduction in patients with cervical spine syndrome. This study proves that, in the truest sense, bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt works with waves of success..

BACKGROUND TO THE RAYONEX STUDY

Today, active medical devices need to be clinically evaluated to prove their safety and effectiveness. Therefore, two device groups were created in the run-up to the study: devices that came from our own production line

- the Rayocomp PS 1000 polar 4.0 med. and
- devices that had been rendered inoperable (placebo devices).

Both the operable and inoperable devices looked exactly the same. However, the dipole antenna system, which is commonly used in bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt, was missing in the placebo devices. All study participants received 10 treatment sessions with a pre-defined compact program, whereby neither the patient nor the clinical investigator knew whether a therapeutically effective or a placebo device was being used.

THE RESULTS – WELL-ESTABLISHED AND RE-PROVEN

The placebo treatment did not achieve any significant improvements in neck pain, headaches, back pain or muscle tension. However, treatment with the Rayocomp bioresonance device showed significant improvements in all parameters.

This scientific study proves to patients and therapists that bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt can be used safely and effectively. Thus, the results of the study confirm what users have been saying for decades: Bioresonance therapy according to Paul Schmidt relieves symptoms and helps give patients a new sense of physical well-being.

"The cause-oriented treatment approach is the most sustainable one."
Paul Schmidt, 1976

A positive resonance for health

Discover the successful concept of alternative medicine. For over 35 years, Rayonex Biomedical GmbH has represented the cause-oriented treatment approach of bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt. A therapy that is valued all over the world.

BIORESONANCE ACCORDING TO PAUL SCHMIDT

The unique combination of German engineering and an understanding of alternative health care is what makes our medical devices so special. The treatment is based on one of nature's principle: Sunlight is the most well-known form of bioresonance. When sunlight comes in contact with our skin, our skin darkens. This is caused by the UV component of sunlight, which has a frequency spectrum in the high terahertz range. In 1975 the engineer Paul Schmidt discovered that not only the sun's frequency spectrum, but also other frequency spectra have an effect on the body: this marked the birth of bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt as we know it today. In short, it is based on stimulating the organism with the aim of supporting self-regulation. Since then, Rayonex Biomedical has actively been researching other frequency spectra that can be transmitted to patients during treatment with modern bioresonance devices.

LOCALLY PRODUCED - USED WORLDWIDE

Today, Rayonex Biomedical is a well-established medical device company that is present in 45 countries around the world. However, our origin has local roots: Rayonex develops all of its products, which are "Made in Germany", in the striking Sauerland-Pyramids in Lennestadt, Germany. This is also where the company headquarters are located. The products are manufactured in the Rayonex factory close to the Sauerland-Pyramids. Our manufacturing processes are carbon neutral and highly precise due to the use of robots. Rayonex Biomedical GmbH is certified to develop, produce and distribute medical devices according to DIN EN ISO 13485:2016 and is audited by TÜV Nord on an annual basis.

Waves of success in practice Rayocomp medical devices

Two approved medical devices, that complement each other perfectly, were developed to allow bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt to be applied to the field of human medicine. These were: the Rayocomp PS1000 polar 4.0 med. and the Rayocomp PS 10 med. These certified medical devices can be used for individual and varied treatment approaches. Even patients who have received a long list of treatments present major challenges for doctors and therapists. Both Rayocomp devices combine comfortable treatment with accurate analysis of the health issue.

RAYOCOMP PS 1000 POLAR 4.0 MED.

FOR STATIONARY MEASUREMENTS AND TREATMENT

The Rayocomp PS 1000 polar 4.0 med. has comprehensive treatment modules and the Rayoscan function. The Rayoscan is an ECG-based device that measures the patient's "energy fingerprint" and, together with the patient's medical history, allows for conclusions to be drawn about deficiencies. The frequencies needed for optimal treatment can be determined and an individual treatment plan can be created based on this analysis. This treatment program can be stored on a RAH "Green Card".

RAYOCOMP PS 10 MED.

FOR PORTABLE USE, E.G. IN HOME THERAPY

The portable Rayocomp PS10 med. and individual "Green Card" allows therapists and patients to use bioresonance therapy according to Paul Schmidt for ambulatory treatment or at home as an accompanying treatment. The scan function was not included in the design of the portable devices. Furthermore, the Rayocomp PS 10 med. is recommended when applying individual therapies or using compact programs.

RAYONEX COMPACT PROGRAMS

In addition to offering individual therapies, bioresonance according to Paul Schmidt also offers sophisticated compact programs. These have proven to be very effective, particularly when it comes to treating cervical spine problems, as our new study shows. The programs are available on both devices and are extremely easy to use: simply switch on the Rayocomp device, run the compact program and the therapy can start.
